

Thinking Heads

Martin Wolf

Martin Wolf is deputy editor and senior economics columnist at the Financial Times. He is an authoritative voice on European and world economies, and on such current issues as the rise of populism, the economic policy of Brexit, the economics of climate change, the future of the Eurozone, and the economy of China and India.

Martin Wolf was a member of the UK Government's Independent Banking Commission from June 2010 to September 2011. Previously, he was an economist for ten years in the International Trade Division of the World Bank. Since 1999, he has been a member of the World Economic Forum in Davos, where he has acted as moderator, and is a member of the International Media Council. He was Director of Studies at the Trade Policy Research Centre in London and has advised governments and international organizations on trade and economic integration.

He is the author of prestigious books on globalisation such as Why Globalization Works; The Global Financial System; Fixing Global Finance; Fixing Global Finance or The Shifts and the Shocks: What We've Learned and Have Still to Learn - from the Financial Crisis